

PRIVACY AND PERSPECTIVES

Straumann JHB, Basel, Switzerland

Architect
Zwimpfer Partner Architects SIA, Basel

Production year: 2004

Initial situation

Between 1995 and 2005, what is known as "Euroville", (office buildings that are home to offices, laboratories, libraries, and university facilities), were constructed around Basel's main train station. It is in the "Jacob Burckhardt House" that the Straumann Corporation (medical technology) installed its headquarters. The overall glass façade called for blinds to ensure a certain amount of privacy. Given the height of the room, the customer asked for a leno fabric of a width of 3 m.

Solution

Our product Silas ensures privacy. It also contributes significantly to the overall design of the Straumann Corporation's open-plan offices and meeting rooms as a decorative element.
